30 Dirty Little Secrets About Your Cancer Man

Learn How To Capture His Heart Even If You're Not The Perfect Zodiac Match

Hello there!

I'm Anna Kovach, Relationship Astrologer and creator of Cancer Man Secrets, a unique, step-by-step guide to understanding and capturing a Cancer man's heart.

I see that you have a particular interest in getting to know how Cancer men operate, maybe you even have a Cancer man of your own that you want to become closer to.

Whatever the case, you're in exactly the right place!

My name is Anna Kovach and I have some things I'd like to share with you about Cancer men. First, though, I'll give you a brief rundown of how I got here, and why I decided to share my Cancer Man Secrets program.

Even if you aren't a big believer in the ancient practice of Astrology, this is one astrological reference you'll want to stop and check out.

You see, there was once a time when I was skeptical of Astrology, it's true. I changed my tune after a trip to Romania, where my aunt opened my eyes to the amazing secrets held in my stars. Let me backtrack just a bit to give you the full picture of what happened.

I had been in a perfect relationship with this perfect guy (he was, and still is, actually a Taurus) and I thought my life was going along very nicely. At first, I wasn't even going to go to Romania to see my aunt because I didn't want to leave my guy behind. It was that serious.

So, there I am, minding my own business when the Universe decides to get my attention in the worst way when my Taurus broke things off between us. I was in shock. I hadn't done anything, at least I didn't think I had...

Everything had been going so smoothly and we'd been having such great conversations and experiences together, why was he doing this??

Well, regardless of why he was doing it, he was, and I was left feeling totally out in the cold. I went from cloud nine to bottom floor in record time. It was bad.

That's when my mom asked one more time if maybe I'd consider taking that trip to see my aunt and get away from everything. I considered it and decided, what the heck? I had nothing to lose and I needed to busy myself with positive experiences.

Once I got unpacked, my aunt started asking questions (I guess I wasn't doing a very good job at hiding my recent emotional wounds). I told her some of what had happened and said I just wanted to not think about it, or him. Before we closed that topic, however, my aunt asked for mine and my guy's birth information so she could cast our charts. I didn't think too much would come of it, but I figured it couldn't hurt to hear what she had to say.

Let me tell you, I was floored when she began telling me things that were quite private and there was no way she could have known, unless, of course, our charts and stars really were revealing these things to her.

It was amazing, we talked for several hours and by the end of the night, I had a deep fascination and a basic understanding of astrology, as well as a thirst to learn more.

With the tips and information gleaned from mine and my Taurus' charts, I made my move once back in the states. Turned out my aunt and astrology were totally right and, once I'd applied the methods of communication and understanding that I'd come to understand through our synastry reading, then we were able to work things through and we are still together today, more than 10 years later!

This is why I'm sharing my knowledge with you.

I've worked with countless personal clients over the years who all have run into a myriad of different problems or issues with their partners.

After I really started to get into learning all about astrology and how it can help people communicate I kind of became obsessed. I never grew tired of learning, speaking with other astrologers, and sometimes even their clients, and reading every book I could get my hands on.

After the incredible impact astrology had on my life and my relationship, I knew I'd found my life's purpose. I knew that one of my jobs in this lifetime is to help couples find a positive balance and happy, joyous energy together by exploring their celestial makeup and taking the advice of their stars.

I want you to have a successful relationship with your Cancer man, free from drama and problems, and full of love and harmony.

So, when you decide to learn from my Cancer Man Secrets program, I've included every possible relationship situation and solution you could think of.

I'll go over how to handle long distance relationships, first physical encounters, how to communicate, how to make him fall in love, how to make him want to put a ring on it, and so much more.

But for starters, I wanted to give you a taste of what you'll learn...so I created this list of 30 dirty little secrets to help you better understand your Cancer man. These are some BASICS just to get you on the right track!

Your friend and Relationship Astrologer,

Anna Kovach

#1 — Cancer men are extremely emotional and easy to upset which means he can be both ultra-sensitive and caring and is incredibly touchy about how you deal with him.

Ruled by the moon, the water sign of Cancer is the most feeling-driven, intuitive sign of the Zodiac. Your Cancer man may be driven at work, highly intelligent and painfully practical but his feelings and gut-sense of people, places, and romantic opportunities are really what he bases all his decisions on.

A rough word, raised voice, angry tone or an offhand text message will have a big impact on him, so think before you speak, and act with great care if you want to keep him charming. If you hurt him, and this is surprisingly easy to do, despite his appearance of being calm strong and in control, and he can retreat into a sulky silence that can last for as long as it takes for you to regain his trust.

You can bring out the best in him by being tuned into where his feelings because when you display that you can deliver the emotionally intelligent brand of love he gives, he can reward you with the most astoundingly attentive and passionate romance you could ever imagine.

#2 — When a Cancer man is in love, he will instinctively protect his lover because he will go to extraordinary lengths to protect, nurture and care for his inner circle.

Cancer is a gentle, home-loving, child-friendly, marriage-suited lover who never forgets or undermines his strongest bonds. With him at your side, you may feel you have the loyal and faithful partner you have always dreamed about, and you may be right.

Do not make the fatal mistake of thinking that because he is love with you, he will put you above everyone else in his life. You are part of a group he needs to nurture and protect and you are not ever going to be more important than his family and oldest or closest friends.

If you get into conflict with his tribe or try to force him to choose between you and them, you will probably lose. The crab will never give up on his most precious heartfelt bonds so pick a fight with his family at your own risk. Treat them with the same sensitive care, awe and respect as he does, and all will be well.

#3 — A Cancer man is hard-wired to nurture and, when he falls in love, he may behave like a strict parent at first and this can put potential lovers off.

A Cancer man will patronize and try to dominate you, especially if he really likes you. Take this as a token of his love and appreciation for his efforts because if you rise up in rebellion or make fun of him, he could go scuttling back into his shell and then you will never discover what a wonderful lover he can be.

When he gets to know you better he will know exactly what to do and say to make you feel comfortable and secure, so give him time, and respect his oddities if you want the bond to last.

#4 — Cancer men have an ability to understand your needs and a need to give you all the empathy, emotional support, affection and care you want.

His caring and empathetic traits are his best qualities, and if you don't appreciate his protective concern and sensitive ways, then you are probably better off with someone else.

If you find his level of empathy and moody emotional tides overwhelming or intimidating, then tell him gently how you feel. No one is able to put themselves in another person's shoes the way a Cancer man can, and once he understands your specific needs for affection, love and emotional serenity he will keep trying to hit your sweet spot as often as he can.

#5 —Cancer men need a partner who respects their commitment to tradition, family and old friends and one who appreciates their attentive caring, protective nature.

Cancer men are among the most loyal and steadfast partners you could wish for, but for their best sides to show, they need a partner who appreciates their attentiveness to those they love.

He needs deep and meaningful connections and if you show you understand what is important to him he will probably never cheat on you or leave your side.

If he senses you do not respect his oldest and strongest bonds, he may avoid committing to you, no matter how much chemistry there is between you.

#6 —Cancer is the sign of the zodiac that is best suited for marriage and Cancer men can be loyal and devoted partners when they are sure that you share the same values.

A Cancer man dreams about a happy and comfortable home, filled with kids and laughter, but he won't make you part of his plans if you seem unlikely to share, or at least respect, his most fundamental principles.

He needs to feel safe and secure, and appreciated, to commit to a long-term bond that also gives him time alone and space to be the moody, mysterious creature he often is.

Introduce him to your family and let him see how much you value your loved ones if you want to get him thinking that you might be the one. Cancer men love everything to do with home, families and they want to create a lot of wonderful memories with you, so let down your guard and let him into your dreams and desires.

#7 —You don't have to be perfect to win his heart, because, if you try your best, a Cancer man will appreciate your effort, but selfishness is one imperfection he really cannot stand!

Cancer is ruled by the moon, which gives him a high sensitivity to Ceres energy which is all about mothering, nurturing and all the values that form our essential expression as humans.

You may have heard that Cancer men are most afraid of being broke and that money, security, and comfort are very important to him. What he really loves is an open generous spirit who is generous with sharing what she has, no matter how much or little that may be.

If you are selfish or completely self-absorbed, that is one thing he will notice right away. If it appears that your heart is narrow and you are only focused on yourself or a few close relationships, he may lose interest in pursuing a serious relationship with you.

#8 —Naturally compassionate and caring, a sensitive Cancer man can – for no apparent reason at all - withdraw and become cold, quiet, petulant and sulky.

Mr. Cancer gets weird and less affectionate if he feels that you don't appreciate his efforts to love and protect you, or if he feels you never give back any care in return, or when he's feeling offended by something you did or said.

In these cases, he can retreat into silence and give off very mixed messages, which may leave you feeling confused and hurt.

Do not react to his silences and sulks by becoming defensive, or by holding back on love. This is when you need to coddle and care for him as if he was a lost baby lamb. He will respond by relaxing back into his considerate, caring, wonderful self.

#9 —Cancer men feel offended if you do not try to give them the same level of attentiveness and nurturing that they give you.

Cancer men expect their partners to anticipate their needs and understand their moods, and you may need to explain that you do not have his empathetic skills and natural instinct for anticipating the needs of others.

If you don't communicate around this and set some guiding principles and firm boundaries for handling conflict and misunderstandings, you may get caught in an endless vicious cycle where he feels resentful and you don't understand what you did wrong.

When you make an effort to reciprocate and at least try to match his art for sensitive communication or produce some authentic acts of sweet devotion, you will have the kindest, loving and understanding man on the planet at your side.

#10 —When he feels hurt a Cancer man will avoid confrontation, and become distant, moody and enigmatic – and there is not much you can do about it.

Most people will give clear signs that they are offended - we express outrage, communicate our anger or we lash out. But a Cancer man can feel intensely let down and he will not show it openly or communicate his displeasure clearly.

Instead, he will become distant, remote and distracted and he will keep you at a distance till he has processed the issue in his mind. He doesn't want a fight, or to dissect the issue over three bottles of wine, he wants to put it somewhere he can think about it in a more detached way.

He needs his space at times like these, so be calm and reassuring because if you react and escalate the tension, or reciprocate with harsh words and threats, your chances of getting back to his loving core become smaller and smaller with each heated exchange.

#11 —Cancer men form very strong attachments when they fall in love and they tend either idealize their ex-lovers or brood over those who hurt or betrayed them.

You have to have patience and compassion not to get irritated when your Cancer man compares you to the love of his life or the lover who hurt him the most.

Cancer men never really get over their failed relationships, so don't even think of telling him that is time to move on.

He will bring his former relationships into bed with him and if he doesn't get the fact that he is putting you off, he may need to be gently encouraged to live in the present moment and stay focused on you.

#12 —The more a Cancer man loves you, the more fearful he becomes that you may hurt or betray him and break his tender heart.

Cancer men are big softies who form very strong attachments when they fall in love and then become fearful and terrified of how much they stand to get hurt.

To get past their insecurities and bring out their best sides you need to make Cancer feel safe. In the early stages, you need to show that you can be trusted and try to avoid being sexually aggressive as this will scare him away.

Show him that you love the same things he does, and share his desire for a strong, solid and lasting bond based on loyalty and faithfulness. He will respond with the kind of love and devotion you may have imagined but never thought possible.

#13 —Cancer men can act like needy babies at times because they are very easily offended or hurt – especially by those they love.

You will find that a Cancer man is very easily offended by small, meaningless things but if you ask him what is wrong he will say it is nothing. A Cancer man takes everything to heart and thinks everything is personal but if he is emotionally mature he will know that his reactions are often out of proportion.

If he doesn't know how silly he is you will need to find a way to quiet the storms of destructive emotion that threaten to blow your relationship apart. Clear and compassionate communication is the best solution.

Tell him you would like to know what is wrong because you care about him and do not want to make him uncomfortable. Give him space to open up, and make it clear that you need help to avoid offending him. Hopefully, he will realize that he needs to do some lightening up and lose the tantrums that make him look more like a baby than a fully grown man.

#14 —Loyalty is important to a Cancer man. If you hurt or betray him he may never forgive you and he can nurse a grudge for life.

When a Cancer man is hurt it can take him years to recover and if you betray him or leave him, he may never forgive you. A grudge is a thing that a Cancer man may keep nursing and feeding to the grave.

Cancers have everything you need from a good life partner, he makes things happen around the home and does his share around the house, but when he falls in love all his creepy insecurities come out to play. Hurt him badly and the Cancer man transforms into a vindictive enemy with a very sharp tongue.

Cancer has one of the longest memories in the zodiac for all the things that have hurt or upset him and while he may eventually forgive you, with enough time or enough apologies from you, he will never forget or get over it.

#15 —Cancer needs to be constantly reassured and told that he is loved, but he knows when you are being fake so make your declarations count.

Loves makes a Cancer man feel needy and insecure but if you can read his moods and give him the assurance and nurturing he needs quite badly now and then (because he gives so much away), you will mostly see his good side and he has a lot to offer if you can avoid his darker sides.

Spell out how much you appreciate his best qualities and that you also want a marriage, kids and a happy long life and if he thinks he is safe with you, he will happily commit and have your back for life.

#16 —Cancers have an unfair reputation for being old-fashioned and prudish about sex, but a crab who feels safe could be the most passionate and sensual lover you have ever had.

The emotional intensity of sex with a Cancer man is something that will develop with time - he doesn't go for shallow flings and quick conquests, preferring to know one woman inside out.

He will surprise you as the sensual side of your relationship develops but you may need to demonstrate honest appreciation for him to really come out of his sexual shell.

Sex for him is never just physical, he needs to express the deepest sense of love when he touches you. Intense eye contact and long deep kisses are needed to kick things off.

#17 —Cancer men are among the most selfless lovers who will explore every inch of your body and find new inventive ways to give you pleasure.

Thanks to their sensitive souls and intuitive skills, Cancer men are selfless lovers who want to please and pamper the object of their desire. They love to kiss their lovers all over and oral pleasure is their special area of expertise, so get ready to lie back and moan.

A cancer man is a kind of lover who loves to give pleasure more he likes to receive it but he needs to feel appreciated so do tell him what he does well and how much you enjoy it.

His gentle love-making skills will surprise and delight you because the shy crab is capable of exploring your shared intimate experience in a style that is gentle and natural, and makes you feel perfectly safe and adored.

#18 —He loves to keep secrets and just as you think you understand him, a Cancer man will surprise you with a new facet of his complicated personality.

Cancer men can seem like riddles when you first meet them, and they are quite attached to remaining enigmatic and never showing their full hand.

Generous to a fault, they hoard their secrets and try not to give too much away about their complicated inner world. If you choose to be with a Cancer man you simply have to accept that you will never fully understand why he feels the way he does or what makes him tick.

Unlike some other signs who broadcast every thought and feeling they have. Cancer keeps his feelings, thoughts, and ambitions to himself. Accept this about him, it is one of the things that probably drew you in at first and it is part of his charm.

#19 —The emotional weather around Cancer is always unpredictable. The only thing you can really count on is that he will be moody and mysterious at times.

Stereotypically moody Cancer men can move wildly from one emotional state to another with very little provocation, but they never stop being soft, sweet and sentimental when it really counts.

If you are not that good at nurturing others, you will clash with the needs of a Cancer man who thinks everyone can read people's needs as easily as he can.

He experiences great highs and equally horrible lows in course of any normal day, and he needs to be with someone who is emotionally mature enough to let him do his moody, unpredictable thing without taking it personally or trying to make him better.

#20 —Your Cancer man absorbs information from sources the rest of us don't even know exist. This gives him the power to intuitively find the right way to approach things and situations.

Cancer men are very good at reading people and this man will see right through you if you pretend to be someone you are not.

If he says something is not right, or that there is more to a story than meets the eye, then best you believe him, but some Cancer men are too insecure and conflicted with fear to trust their instincts and act on what they know.

When comfortable with themselves, which often happens as they mature, Cancer men can develop deep emotional wisdom that allows them to understand themselves and other people with uncanny perception

#21 —Cancer men are mommy's boys with a natural respect and fondness for women in general and a very close (or extremely complicated) bond with their mother.

He is quite a rare creature in a world of active strong and over-macho men, but despite all the pressure to conform to how men should behave, he will often bravely defend his mother in particular and feel protective to all women.

Cancer men often support women around them and encourage them to do things that are reserved for me to do, because he really does think women are more capable than men.

He may have learned to hide his feminine sides, but in the right company and with enough sense of being secure, he will express his admiration for women by giving his female partner a huge amount of love, encouragement, and support. If his mother issues are negative, he will behave like a bossy baby and you will have to enjoy mothering a grown man when he gets tetchy.

#22 —Cancer men need a happy, centered and warm sense of home and strong family bonds to achieve their best in life.

In Astrology Cancer presides over the 4th house of the Zodiac where home, nurturing and family take center stage. If your Cancer man is completely disinterested in having a family you will probably find that he was damaged by his early childhood and is reacting to a deep wound.

If his childhood was happy he will often be nostalgic for food and traditions from the home where he grew up. His sentimental attachment to the ideal family home make him easily turned off by coldness, cruelty, crude expressions, angry arguments, fast food, and homes that are untidy, unclean or show a lack of care and love.

You don't need to be the perfect housewife to impress him but you need to take obvious care of your home and keep things clean and cozy. No matter how well you cook, if you make an effort to light some candle and serve him the comfort food that reminds him of his youth, he will be thrilled and delighted and devoted to you.

#23 — Your Cancer man may appear to someone without ambition but never underestimate the secret ambitions, energy, and vigor that motivate his path through life.

He may not wear his ambitions on his sleeve, but Cancer is a cardinal sign which means they preside over the movement of the natural world from one season to another. Just as the moon governs the tides of the sea without barking orders, Cancers are often quietly at the very edge of where change is happening and they will often break new ground in their work or their communities without making a lot of noise about it.

Cardinal signs are known to initiate projects more than finish them, and Cancer men are known for being enigmatically creative when it comes to finding new solutions to old problems or getting grand ideas into practical forms. Getting him to stay with a project to completion is another matter entirely.

#24 —Cancer men have a clear definition of their ideal love partner and they often feel disappointed when their unreasonably high expectations of love do play out.

Cancer men want a deeply felt bond of lasting love but they sabotage themselves by imposing their impossible expectations on a new relationship that cannot ever compete with an ideal in their head.

Cancer men expect - since they plan to do so much for you - that you will appreciate how much effort they make by trying to meet theirs just as much. They imagine that all people have the magical ability they have to understand what all other people want and need.

They can be flexible and compromise here and there, but they will be restlessly impatient if their perfect relationship ideal does not materialize. When things don't play out as expected, they will probably blame the shortcomings of their partners, but never really question how their unrealistic expectations contribute to making them miserable.

#25 —Cancer men are affectionate and extraordinarily generous. They love nothing more than surprising those they love with lavish or thoughtful gifts and they don't feel shy about making grand romantic gestures.

Cancer is one of the most giving personalities that you can find. They often spoil their friends and family with lavish acts of generosity that expect nothing back in return other than authentic appreciation.

They don't do it because they feel they have to, they do it because it gives them great pleasure to please people they care about. Say thank you sincerely and do not reject the gift because all they expect in return is your appreciation, and if you fail to express gracious acceptance and gratitude they will feel deeply hurt.

#26 —Cancer men have a disturbing dark side with a capacity for being volatile and unpredictable, especially in relationships when they really care about their partner.

Cancer men possess a vulnerability that makes them either deeply creepy or very cuddle-worthy as friends, flirts, and flings. As partners - if they feel hurt, betrayed or used they become difficult to understand and frustrating to love.

Cancer can be a mess of emotions at the best of times, and if you neglect him he can become distant, old, withdrawn, grumpy, touchy, argumentative and curt.

You need to realize that he will always put up a wall when he feels hurt or is scared of being hurt. You need to put a ladder up against the wall with kind words, quiet support, and gentle respect, that will allow him to climb back over when he has had his time to reflect and lick his wounds.

#27 —Cancer men are unlikely to cheat on their partners because they seek a stable committed relationship and will do anything to make it work.

You can trust your Cancer man not to run after every pretty girl he sees and although he keeps secrets, to protect himself from the harsh world around him, once he lets you into his world he will share almost everything with you.

He is honest and rarely tells lies unless doing so could help you or protect you, and he won't blurt out things that hurt your feelings without thinking, as some other signs do

Some Cancer men do find themselves having affairs because they are reluctant to hurt the person they are with so they may keep a new relationship secret until the old relationship ends.

#28 —Cancer man is fiercely protective of the women in their lives which makes them a chivalrous companion who will always take your side and guard your back.

Sensitive Cancer men are rare creatures in a world of active strong and over-macho men, but despite all the pressure to conform to how men should behave, he will often bravely defend his mother in particular and feel protective about all women.

A Cancer man can seem calm and appear to be untouchable until they are provoked and the best way to provoke them is to threaten the safety of anyone they love. They don't allow anyone to walk all over them and if someone tries to bully you or intimidate him he will show his strength and put them forcefully in their place.

#29 —A Cancer man is obsessed with privacy and will protect himself and his closest relationships by keeping secrets even if it means being dishonest at times.

Cancer can confuse privacy with dishonesty because he doesn't see the secrets he keeps as being anything like lies by omission.

He just has an excessive need to protect himself by keeping secrets that he will guard with his life, and the more you try to prod the truth out of him, the more distant he will become.

Retreating into his shell is a way for him to avoid exposure to pain and criticism. Give him space because Cancer needs time away from the world, so he can replenish his imagination, and deal with his complicated soul and all the intense things he feels.

#30 — Cancer men are slow to show their passion but once they do they are very devoted partners who will fight for your relationship and defend your honor at all costs.

Cancer men are shy in courtship and they find it very difficult to express their raw sexual energy as men. They rarely initiate sex and can find sexually aggressive women intimidating or even distasteful.

Once he commits, Cancer expects you to be as slavishly loyal as he is. If you betray his trust your love affair could become a war of words with an open wound that never really heals

If you want unpredictable drama and wild passionate romance, he may not be your best choice, but if you want a solid long-term relationship, then do what you can to make him see that you share his ideals for life and love.

When he is comfortable and feels he can trust you, a caring and sensitive Cancer man is among the best lovers and partners a woman could dream of in life.
